

Since I've signed up for the DO NOT CALL list about a year ago, it has been such a relief to not be constantly harassed by unsolicited phone calls during supper, watching TV, taking a nap, etc. I would estimate that 99% of our telemarketing calls were eliminated by this law, and think it would be unfair to the general public to have it revoked. It seems as if it should be my right as a citizen to choose whether or not I wish to receive these calls. Furthermore, the same should apply to cell phone solicitations. Thank you for allowing me to submit my opinion.
